

ESG Data Platform

July 2023

We aim to integrate double materiality considerations across all our investment management activities. We are mindful of how investment performance is affected by sustainability factors (financial materiality), but also the positive and negative impact on society that our investment decisions may cause (societal materiality).

We have built a data platform consisting of material high-quality ESG data that supports our integrated approach and our investment teams' ability to make better-informed investment decisions. The ESG data platform based on ESG data from multiple ESG data providers (MSCI, ISS ESG, Sustainalytics, SASB, Util). We take an agnostic view to ESG data and focus on finding data sources that complement each other, to support our ambition to understand what is material, in order to make holistic investment analysis.

The investment teams have access to required ESG data & research. Investment teams analyse relevant financial and ESG information to identify material financial and ESG factors affecting a company, sector, and/or country from multiple data sources (including the but not limited to the ESG Data Platform, company reports and third-party investment research).

A definitive list of environmental, social and governance (ESG) issues does not exist, and there is no agreed-upon market standard taxonomy or set of definitions that can be used as a 'true' benchmark. ESG data, scores and rankings should be viewed and managed from an underlying methodology, scope, and application. Below are the ESG Data Indicators, which are incorporated into our current ESG Data Platform for Danske Bank Asset Management.
